Diddle Retires After 42 Years

Fire Guts College Of Commerce

Ten clasped hands symbolize the close ties between Western's retiring basketball coaches and their successors. Coach E. A. Diddle announced his retirement as head coach June 20 and passed the Hilltopper reins he had held for 42 years over to John Oldham. Coach Diddle's assistant for 26 of those years, Ted Hornback, simultaneously announced that he would bow out and Gene Rhodes was named new assistant coach. From left are Buck Sydnor, new freshman coach, Hornback, Diddle, Oldham, and Rhodes. Coach Hornback and the three new coaches all starred with outstanding Diddle-coached teams.

Students Help Fight June Fire

Western's administrative staff is in the process of formulating plans for the location next fall of the Department of Business and Government forced to move when a fire gutted the College of Commerce Building just before midnight Saturday, June 21.

"We will be able to work out emergency space arrangements but it will severely tax our limited classroom space," Dr. Raymond L. Cravens, Dean of the College, said.

He added that space formerly devoted to other uses would have to be used for classrooms.

The fire which heavily damaged the 112-year-old building was apparently the work of an arsonist. The city fire chief and a state deputy fire marshall said, in a joint statement, "there appears little doubt that the fires were set."

Firemen found several strips of inner tube which had been soaked with a volatile liquid at the scene of the blaze. Another fire which was discovered just a few minutes earlier and destroyed the old Boys' Club building apparently was also deliberately set.

Classes Relocated

Business and Government classes met Monday without interruption after the College faculty and staff had worked throughout the day Sunday locating classroom space. Most of the classes were relocated in

Reins Passed To Diddle Proteges

A marvelous and revered tradition has come to an end at Western.

Or has it?

When world renowned E. A. Diddle recently resigned as Western's head basketball coach, it marked the end of one of the most fabulous coaching eras of all time. For the coming year, he'll continue to serve as athletic director.

Bowing out of active coaching at the same time is Ted Hornback, for the past 25 years as devoted and capable an assistant coach as a man ever had. He'll devote full time in 1964-65 to his post as head of the Department of Physical Education and will succeed Diddle as athletic director.

Diddle's 42 seasons as the No.

1 Hilltopper will probably go unmatched forever. No one else has ever coached as many of his 1,061 games at one school or won as many at a single institution as his 759.

His antics on the bench with his ever-present red towel ... his ability to twist words all out of shape until they express what he wants to say even more precisely than their correct counterparts ... his ready smile and friendly greeting for fans and students everywhere ... these things will never be forgotten. They're just as indelibly etched into the history of the game he loves so much as are those 759 victories.

Illness

Diddle suffered two severe heart attacks in early April and has not bounced back as quickly and as solidly as he hoped. He had wanted to get in one final great season before he reached the mandatory retirement age of 70 next spring. But his health, the advice of his physician, and the influence of his beloved wife and family finally persuaded the grand old gentleman to call it quits.

That's something that the great basketball teams his Hilltoppers faced in the past half century — and even several earlier attacks — could not do.

Diddle, red towel and all, has stepped down. But the traditions he built are likely to live on for many years to come, perhaps for all time.

Former Pupils

Three of Diddle's former stars and brightest pupils — head coach John Oldham, assistant coach Gene Rhodes and freshman coach Buck Sydnor — will guide Western's basketball fortunes. They can hardly avoid passing on to their charges bits of the tremendous influence that Diddle exerted upon their careers, both as players and as coaches.

Each of the three new coaches has talents and traits that were easily identifiable in Diddle.

Breathitt To Speak To August Grads

Governor Edward "Ned" Breathitt will deliver the summer commencement address at Western August 7, Dr. Kelly Thompson has announced.

Exercises for summer graduates, Western's 90th commencement, will be held at 7:30 p.m. August 7 in the Academic-Athletic Building.

Western conferred 626 degrees at the spring commencement June 5.

At the summer commencement 434 students are expected to receive degrees, sending the total graduated in one year above the 1,000 mark for the first time in the college's history.

Breathitt

Breathitt, inaugurated last December as the 47th governor of the commonwealth, was born in Hopkinsville, the son of E. T. and Mary Jo Wallace Breathitt. He is married to the former Frances Holleman of Mayfield, a former Western student.

The 39-year-old governor continues a Breathitt family record of public service that dates to pre-Civil War days when an ancestor, John Breathitt, served a lieutenant governor and governor (1827-1833). He is a nephew of Lt. Gov. James Breathitt Jr.,

GOV. E. T. BREATHITT

(1928) and a grandson of James Breathitt, who was attorney general in 1907-11.

As a 27-year-old lawyer Breathitt was elected to the State House of Representatives in 1951. He rose to political

Miss Richards Receives Award

The first editor of the College Heights Herald has become the first winner of the Herald's annual award to a person who makes an outstanding contribution to journalism.

Miss Frances Richards received the award at the first annual Herald Awards Dinner at the close of the spring semester.

Miss Richards, who has been sponsor of the Herald for almost 40 years, has been an instructor of journalism and English to many persons who are now actively engaged in the journalism profession.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Richards the Herald had consistently been rated as one of the nation's better collegiate newspapers.

As a result of a carefully kept secret, Miss Richards did not know that she was to be the winner of the first annual honor.

As a matter of fact, a committee under her direction had worked diligently to select one of her former students as the winner.

Eleven other former Herald editors were among the 80 persons present to see her receive the honor. In addition to Miss Richards, the 1925 editor, they were:

Joe Lafferty, Cave City, 1933; John C. Lovett, Benton, 1937; Bert Borrone, Bowling Green, 1941; Sam Steger, Princeton, 1942; Dave Whitaker, Louisville, 1947; Bob Richardson, Louisville, 1953; Mrs. Tom Ecker, Western English instructor, 1955; Mrs. Betty Spradlin Morton, Bristol, Tenn., 1958; Jim Skaggs, Nashville, 1961; Bernard Madison, Bowling Green, 1962, and the current editor, Miss Sandra Stuart of Bowling Green.

Also present was Dr. Gordon Wilson, retired head of the English department, who was the editor of Western's first newspaper, The Elevator, in 1911-1912.

Presentation of the award was made by Mr. Borrone, who is sports editor of the Park City Daily News at Bowling Green.

Miss Richards also received a medal from the Herald. The presentation of this medal and six others was made by Mr. Robert Cochran, Western director of public relations and Herald general manager.

Receiving the Herald medals were Bob Adams, assistant editor, and Finley Willis, best reporter, who will head next year's Herald; Miss Stuart, outgoing editor; former advertising manager, Larry Dykes; advertising manager-elect Colleen Riley; and Doris Pendleton, outstanding feature writer.

Dr. Willson Wood, Head of the English department, was toastmaster for the evening.

Enrollment Sets New Mark On Hill

A record total of 2,486 students are enrolled in college classes at Western for the summer term, Rhea P. Lazarus has announced.

The figure represents the largest summer enrollment for a complete summer session in the history of the college.

Last year a total of 2,304 students enrolled for the summer term, a new record at that time.

In addition to the college enrollment, 565 students are enrolled in the summer session at the Training School, according to Mr. James A. Carpenter, director of the school.

Expanded Facilities To Benefit Students

Anyone having a class in Cherry Hall cannot help but hear roaring and clanging outside his classroom window. Western is undergoing a transition into what will soon be expanded facilities for the students.

There is a feeling of anxiety among many students about the "destruction" of the trees surrounding the Paul L. Garrett Student Center. The trees are being removed for the expansion of the Student Center and accompanying cafeteria and snack bar.

The barricades around the Student Center have been erected to minimize the possibility of injury to students who might wander into areas where a heavy concentration of labor is being carried on. A result of the barricade is that students are re-routed around the Student Center. It has been said that the barrier resembles a maze in an amusement park. The closed driveway results in students having to walk instead of drive up the Hill to class.

Western students, faculty, and officials will all benefit from the expansion of the Student Center. This fact should be kept in mind whenever one is confronted with one of the obstacles on campus.

Did You Know This About Western???

The statue of President Henry Hardin Cherry, the founder of Western, is symbolic of the admiration Western bestows upon a great educator who did so much for the advancement of a great institution.

Students at Western tend to believe that the idea of having a bronze statue erected in honor of President Cherry originated on Western's campus; however, the idea was originated in Nashville, by an alumnus of Western who had heard the sculptor of this great work, Lorado Taft, speak at a lecture.

The cost of the statue, the last great work of Lorado Taft, was $10,000. Contributions were accepted toward the payment for the statue. These were limited to $100 and ranged from $100 to one penny, contributed by children in rural schools.

The statue was placed in front of Cherry Hall overlooking the city of Bowling Green. President Cherry preferred that the statue be placed among the students — his students — as they went in and out of Cherry Hall.

Faculty Member's Books On Sale At Book Store

BY DORIS PENDLETON The absent-minded professor would never have a chance at Western.

A prolific amount of literature, written by past and present faculty members, is indicative of a distinguished and intellectually-agile faculty writing in several areas.

Presently in use in the chemistry curriculum is a laboratory manual written by Mr. Claude M. Wilkerson of the Department of Chemistry. The manual, complete with study assignments, laboratory experiments, and an introduction to semi-micro qualitative analysis, is used in both general chemistry and general inorganic chemistry courses.

Mr. Wilkerson, who joined the faculty in 1956, received a B.S. degree from Western and an M.S. degree from the University of Illinois.

Another manual, written by Mr. Glen E. Lange, is used for study in the basic accounting courses.

Entitled Study Guide and Self-Instruction Manual for Accounting Principles, the manual employs a "frame-answer" method of study.

Mr. Lange joined the Department of Business and Government in 1963. He holds a B.C.S. degree from Drake University and an M.A. from the University of Missouri.

Mr. Jim Wayne Miller of the foreign languages department poems with the provocative and unusual title of Copperhead Cane.

Mr. Miller, who teaches German and is working on his doctoral dissertation in German, has previously had short stories published in Vagabond, Spectrum, and Carolina Quarterly. Some of the poems appearing in his volume were discussed in the "Poetry Workshop" in the July, 1963 issue of The Writer. The literary quality of Mr. Miller's poems is indicated by the review on the book's jacket: "... They are profound artistic statements, with a meaning and existence of their own, involving us all personally in experiences that, though these poems, become relevant to the universal human situation."

Mr. Miller graduated from Berea in 1958 with a B.A. degree, and has done graduate study in German and English at Vanderbilt University on a National Defense Fellowship.

Dr. William M. Jenkins, Jr., head of the Department of Business and Government, is co-author of a book on the Himalayan kingdoms of Nepal, Sikkim, and Bhutan.

The book, "An Attempt to Evaluate the Complex Politico-geographic Pattern of the Himalayan kingdoms," also has as a co-author Dr. Pradyumna P. Karan, associate professor of geography at the University of Kentucky.

Dr. Jenkins received his A.B. from The Citadel and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Kentucky. He joined the faculty in 1959.

Dr. Gordon Wilson, former head of the English department, is the author of two booklets now on sale in Western's bookstore.

Foreign Chemist Will Visit Science Institute

A distinguished foreign scientist, Dr. M. Shafqat H. Siddiqi of Pakistan, will be on the campus July 16-20, lecturing to participants in a summer institute in science and mathematics.

Dr. Siddiqi is chairman of the department of chemistry at the University of Peshawar, Pakistan.

The institute in which Dr. Siddiqi will participate began June 15. Financed by a grant from the National Science Foundation, it is designed for high school teachers of science and mathematics.

Dr. Ward C. Sumpter, director of the institute and member of Western's chemistry department, said Dr. Siddiqi would lecture and exchange views on high school science teaching with the institute participants.

The foreign scientist normally gives lectures in his special field, reports on educational practices in his nation, leads a seminar or two, and participates in informal discussions, Dr. Sumpter said.

One of Thirteen

Western's visitor is one of 13 foreign scientists who are visiting the United States this summer at more than 100 such institutes being held across the country. The 13, in fields of biology, chemistry, physics, and mathematics, were chosen for their eminence in science and knowledge of secondary science education. They come from seven European nations and from Pakistan.

Dr. Siddiqi was awarded the Ph.D. degree by the University of Chicago in 1951. He had previously earned his bachelor of science and master of science degrees from Osmania University in India and a second master's degree from the University of Chicago.

Chemistry Lecturer

He was a lecturer in Chemistry at Osmania during the 1943-46 academic years and a teaching assistant at the University of Chicago from 1949 until 1951. He moved to his present location in 1953 and was elevated to chairman of the department in 1960.

Dr. Siddiqi has worked as deputy chief in the Educational Reforms Implementation Unit of the Ministry of Education in Pakistan. He has also organized summer institutes in his country for college teachers and conducted chemistry institutes.

In 1959, he participated in the UNESCO seminar on the teaching of science as a delegate of the Pakistan government. Again in 1963 he was Pakistan's delegate to a conference on the teaching of science conducted by CENCO.

HILLTOPICS by Sandra Stuart

Having trouble finding a place to eat? If so, you'd better read this carefully.

Perhaps you never thought of lunching in the old gym but this is one summer when you are urged to do so. You are invited to picnic everyday at the College Canteen. Housed in spacious quarters, the Canteen is open from 6:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., daily.

If you prefer to trudge down the Hill you can stop by the Sandwich Shop in the new girls' dorm, or the Grill which is located in West Hall.

All these establishments are open for your eating enjoyment this summer.

All good things must come to an end... this concludes my career as editor-in-chief of the College Heights Herald. It's been a fine experience? ... sure. I could publish an issue devoted solely to "the ups and downs of an editor"? ... certainly, I'd do it over if I had the opportunity? ... you bet.

I could go into detail right now relating experiences and thanking everyone who has helped me, but an eight-page paper doesn't have that much space. So, I'll go on to new lay-outs somewhere out there and sign my thirty right here.

Two Western graduates, John Warren Oakes and Charles Napier, and one Western senior, Anne Francis Hill, won first prizes in the Bowling Green Woman's Club Art festival held June 24-27.

"1952 Cadillac - $50," a painting by Mr. Oakes, was awarded the Best Of The Show. The entry is painted in oil and magna acrylic plastic paint with collage elements of tissue paper, newspaper and gauze.

Mr. Oakes said the title of his work had no relation to the representation of a Cadillac but to a clipping from a newspaper advertisement. The actual subject of this work "is my involvement with the plastic organic nature of paint and the visualization of the ideas mentioned in the ad."

Mr. Oakes, who received $50 for his winning entry, was graduated from Western in June with an A.B. degree with honors. He plans to attend the State University of Iowa to work toward a master of fine arts degree. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Oakes of Bowling Green.

Mr. Oakes also received a silver bowl for his painting, "Shower Gardens," which won first place in the oils division. Mrs. William C. Lowry, also a Western graduate, won third place for her work, "Main And State."

Water Colors
"September Song," a water color by Charles Napier, won first place in the water colors division. Mr. Napier also won second and third prize for "Before The Storm" and "Bailey's Point."

Mr. Napier was graduated from Western in 1961 with a major in art. He will teach art at John F. Kennedy Junior High School in Clearwater, Fla., this fall. He is doing graduate work at Western this summer. Mr. Napier is strictly a nature painter, taking "several scenes or experiences of life and putting them together to express the thought in picture instead of words."

Miss Anne Francis Hill, who will graduate in August, won first place in the mixed medium division with "Busyrane Castle." Miss Hill said that, to her, "art comes first, and everything else is secondary." Miss Hill will teach art in Alton, Ill. after graduation. She is the daughter of Mrs. Lois Hill of Miami, Fla., and the late Mr. Hill.

Miss Hill also won third prize in the mixed medium division for "Trees."

Picked to join the touring art show with Sears, Roebuck and Co. was "1952 Cadillac - $50" by Mr. Oakes, and "Trees" by Miss Hill.

The tour will travel 40 major cities for one year, at the end of which the paintings will be exhibited at the Atlanta Art Museum. At this time, the Best of the Show will be judged and awarded a $2000 cash prize.

27 Lettermen Return For 1964 Grid Season

Twenty-seven of the 40 lettermen who last year led Western to its most brilliant football season ever will report to Coach Nick Denes and staff when drills open for the 1964 season on September 1.

That's a big nucleus to build a squad around — or at least, it would be if those 27 experienced men were distributed equally among the 11 positions on the team. But such is not the case.

The Hilltopper backfield this fall should be superb. Only halfback Carson Culler, a solid runner and an outstanding defense sive corner back, is gone from among the front liners on the '63 squad.

The offensive quarterback chores will again fall on the capable shoulders of Sharon Miller. He is one of the most dangerous rollout quarterbacks in the history of the Ohio Valley Conference. He'll be able to call on such proven offensive stalwarts as All-OVC halfback Jim Burt, halfbacks Elmer Murray and Joe Baird, and fullback John Burt.

The top defensive performer in the backfield, of course, is Dale Lindsey, whose linebacking prowess easily won all-conference honors for him a year ago. Pat Counts, stellar safetyman, is also back to complete his eligibility.

Even with all that talent, plus some capable substitutes, in the backfield, it's often "what's up front that counts" in football.

Although the Hilltoppers can field solid performers at every position in the line, the problem of finding sufficient reserve strength to back up the starters is one of the biggest things that will face Denes and his staff when fall practice begins.

Stan Napper will return to his starting post at end where he has been outstanding for two straight seasons. Also back are lettermen Ken Waller, Jerry Matthews, Kenny Wallace and Charlie Webb. Waller probably has the edge in experience on the other flanker candidates.

Even with this talented lineup, the absence of graduated John Mutchler, Little All-America and All-OVC in '63, will surely be felt.

The guards also loom strong again despite the loss of Joe Bugel and Fred Miller from last fall's OVC and Tangerine Bowl title squad. The guards will be paced by Ed Crum and Bob Holman, both extremely hard hitters. Ken Frick will also be pushing for a starting spot, but other reserves are virtually untried.

The depth situation is even more acute at tackle and center, the Topper positions hit hardest by graduation.

Hugh Sturgeon and Walter Hawkins are back and should get excellent help from Jesse Grant, a University of Kentucky transfer who is eligible this fall for the first time. Tom Murrell and Harry Reif, both lettermen, lead the center candidates.

"You just don't lose people like Harold Chambers, Bob Gehhart, Gary Kelley and Bob Westmoreland in that line and not feel the pinch," said Denes as he explained the situation.

"We can field a starting eleven that will be able to hold its own with almost anybody," he continued, "but injuries, especially at tackle or center, could hurt us badly."

The Hilltoppers path toward a second straight OVC title appears to be a rocky one. All the other teams in the league should be stronger than last year, with East Tennessee, Middle Tennessee, Tennessee Tech and Murray stacking up as the top competition Western will face during the conference season.

Tops To Open Cage Season With Belmont

Western basketball coach John Oldham has announced a 1964-65 schedule that includes 22 regular season games, the Ohio Valley Conference tournament and an exhibition game with the Phillips 66ers of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Oldham took over the helm of the Hilltoppers after E. A. Diddle, Western head coach for 42 seasons, recently decided to retire from active coaching.

Oldham will make his coaching debut at Western, his alma mater, when the Hilltoppers open the season at home on Dec. 1 against Belmont College. Other non-conference opponents include the 66ers from Bartlesville, Okla., Bowling Green (Ohio) University, Van Newman, Texas Wesleyan, Union (Tenn.), and LaSalle. Western will play its usual home-and-home schedule with the other seven member schools of the OVC.

The OVC is reviving its conference tournament this year. Scheduled for Dec. 21-23 at Convention Center in Louisville, it will be the first league tournament held since 1953.

Oldham coached for the past nine seasons at Tennessee Tech where his teams won 118 and lost 83, twice tying for the Ohio Valley Conference crown and winning it outright once. He was an All-American guard under Diddle at Western before graduating in 1949.

The complete 1964-65 Hilltopper schedule:

Brenda High Wins State Golf Meet

Brenda High, a Western sophomore from Glasgow, captured the Women's State Amateur Golf Championship in Owensboro last week.

Brenda's power from tee to green completely demoralized Mrs. Robert Estes of Louisville as Miss High won the final match 9 and 8.

WESTERN'S young golf team has been bolstered for the 1965 campaign by the signing of Bill Bewley to a grant-in-aid. Coach Frank Griffin looks on with Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bewley of Glasgow.

Pros
and Prose

★ What kind of pros are at WESTERN HILLS to put into prose? Well . . . there are all kinds.

★ Just look at the exterior of the restaurant. Its modern design clearly suggests that the builders were real pros. Also, one can conclude that the designers were men with foresight. I'm referring to the large area that was put aside for parking. There is plenty of space just for you to park your car. I don't exactly know how many cars the lot will hold, but I can truthfully say that even though I have seen the restaurant packed, I have never seen the parking lot full.

★ Now, let's go inside. The first thing that one notices is the air. Even though it may be hotter than a firecracker outside, it's always as cool as a cucumber inside. That's another feather in the caps of the builders, for they also thought of comfort.

★ Speaking of comfort . . . there is plenty of space at the tables. Nobody is ever crowded while sitting at a table—any table. I know because I never feel cramped and I should know for I'm a fairly large fellow.

★ Speaking of large fellows . . . let's examine the pro who manages W.H.R. I mean Mr. Jim Taylor. Truly, he is a real pro. He has to be to have the smooth running organization like he has. Mr. "T" only hires pros. Everyone from the chef down to the bus boys are tops.

★ Now, how about the pros that come out to enjoy the cuisine. I mean you yourself. You are the true connoisseur when it comes to eat. You and only you, know what you want and where to get it. I guess that's why so many of you are always out at W. H.

★ My Pal Val says: "A very special welcome to all the students, both old and new, enrolled in summer school."

Superintendent's Conference To Convene Here On July 17

"The Outlook for Education in Kentucky" will be the theme of the program for the 30th annual Summer Conference for Superintendents scheduled for Friday, July 17, on the Western campus.

The program will be presented by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Harry M. Sparks and members of his staff, Dr. Kelly Thompson announced.

The Conference is sponsored by Western each summer. This year the Conference will convene in the foyer of the Academic-Athletic Building at 2 p. m. (CST).

Ova Haney, superintendent of Larue County Schools and president of the Conference this year, will preside.

The Conference has been designated as an official meeting by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The old-fashioned fish fry which is held each year in conjunction with the Conference will start at 4:30 p.m. (CST) on the Kentucky Building Grounds.

President Thompson sent letters of invitation to the Conference to all school superintendents in Kentucky this week.

DR. SPARKS

Western, NASA To Sponsor Space Science Workshop

Western and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will conduct a Space Science Workshop for Teachers on campus next week.

The workshop, scheduled for the afternoons of July 6-10 will be led by two experienced N.A.S.A. science educators.

Participants in the workshops will be Western summer school students and faculty including the more than 80 high school students in the summer science institute being conducted at Western. The workshop will be opened to interested teachers in the area and will be of special interest to science teachers.

A special evening program will be conducted Tuesday, July 7, for members of the general public interested in learning more about the space age.

Models of launch vehicles and spacecraft, mechanical and electronic devices, and other audio-visual materials and experiments are a part of the demonstration equipment. These aids are used in demonstrating basic scientific principles and how these apply to the programs of N.A.S.A.

prominence in 1952 when elected state president of the Young Democrats Club. During the presidential race that same year he was state speakers' chairman for Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson.

Second Enrollment

A record 2,486 students are enrolled in summer school at Western this year. When the summer school closes, academic activity at Western will cease until September 13 when the freshmen class will arrive on campus for counseling, orientation, testing, and registration.

Upper classmen and graduate students will begin registration Wednesday, September 16, and continue through Saturday, September 19. Classes for the fall semester start September 21.

and ornithology, Dr. Wilson has compiled a booklet entitled Folkways of the Mammoth Cave Region.

The booklet, an intensive study of the people, language, and general culture of the Mammoth Cave area, represents several years of effort. The other publication, Birds of South Central Kentucky, contains a general introduction and a listing of the many birds found in the Bowling Green-Mammoth Cave area, which really is several counties in scope.

For each bird listed, the scientific name, seasonal appearance, and other factual data are given. The booklet is used as auxiliary reading in some biology courses.

Dr. Wilson retired in 1959 after over 40 years of service. He received A.B., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees from Indiana University.

He is the author of several other publications, including Passing Institutions, Fidelity Folks, and "Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore," a column now appearing in nearly 100 Kentucky newspapers.

Dr. Arndt M. Stickles, retired head of the History department, is author of a monograph entitled The Critical Court Struggle in Kentucky, 1819-1829.

Published in 1929, the book is a thorough and comprehensive discussion of the five-year-long court struggle in Kentucky which raged from 1822-1826. The controversy is discussed and interpreted from an historical-sociological-political approach, with special emphasis upon the entire decade, 1819-1829.

Dr. Stickles, who came to Western in 1908, received an A.B. degree from Indiana University, M.A. degree from Indiana and Harvard Universities, and Ph.D. degree from Indiana University.

Mr. Ish Richey, a graduate of Western, is the author of an anthology of Kentucky literature. It is dedicated in part to Dr. Gordon Wilson and Miss Frances Richards, professor of English.

It contains discussions of this state's poets and novelists from 1874 to 1963.

Mr. Richey obtained both his B.S. and M.A. degrees from Western.

Mary Julia Neal has edited The Journal of Eldress Nancy, which is housed in the Kentucky Library. In the preface to the book, the author acknowledges her indebtedness to the Library's staff.

The book also contains an introduction and a comprehensive glossary.

All of these literary publications are on sale in Western's bookstore.

Oldham, Rhodes, Sydnor Take Reins

die. Oldham exhibits several. He has a bit of Diddle's knack for recognizing the potential in a young basketball player. Perhaps the greatest evidence of this was shown in the meteoric career of Jimmy Hagan at Tennessee Tech, where he played under Oldham.

Hagan was a pale, skinny, gawky youngster when he played for Glendale high school in the Kentucky State Tournament his senior year. Of the many coaches who watched Hagan play, Oldham was the only one who had an idea that the 6-8 teenager might someday become an exceptional college player.

Under Oldham's patient teaching and prodding, Hagan went on to break nearly every Tech scoring record and make All-America rating his senior year. He's now playing with the Phillips 66ers of Bartlesville, Okla.

Oldham also has a talent for making the right moves and counter-moves from the bench during a game. This was a vital part of Diddle's success through the years, too.

Rhodes And Sydnor

Rhodes has been a highly successful high school coach at both Louisville's St. Xavier and Male since his graduation from Western in 1952. He has some of the fiery personality that Diddle flashed from the bench, exuding a deeply dedicated spirit of competition. He imparts a prideful tenacity to his players, just as Diddle did.

Sydnor, who played on Western's first National Invitational Tournament team in 1942, exemplifies Diddle's teaching ability, a talent that consistently made polished, graceful stars of rather awkward youngsters whom Diddle recruited because he said they "had big hands and big feet and figured they would grow to 'em."

Sydnor has coached in high schools at Daviess County, Hopkinsville and Bowling Green. At Daviess County he tutored Bobby Rascoe, an All-American guard at Western in 1962 and currently a star with the Phillips 66ers. As freshman coach, Sydnor's teaching thoroughness should pay big dividends for the Hilltoppers.

Inspiring

Perhaps the most significant thing about Western's trio of new coaches is that they seem to have the ability to lift inspired performances from their players. This, again, can be construed as something of a mirror image of Diddle.

Diddle's inspiration not only covered game performance, but extended into the accomplishments of his "boys" throughout their adult lives.

Maybe Sydnor put it best when he commented to newsmen at the announcement of Diddle's retirement, "As great a coach as Mr. Diddle is, his greatest achievement has been in the building of men."

Every person who ever came in contact with Diddle for any length of time seemed to carry a little something extra away with him.

Diddle's successors — Oldham, Sydnor, Rhodes — may have inherited a little more than the usual share of that nameless, hard-to-pinpoint "something."

That's why the Diddle tradition at Western isn't gone. It's here to stay.
